

Intellectual property and technology

The rapid pace of change in technology demands legal advice that is timely, practical and to the point. No matter what type of technology you are developing, you need the right protection in place to ensure your ideas become and remain a commercial success.

Cooper Grace Ward advises start-up technology businesses through to mid-sized and listed companies engaged in technology innovation and development.

Our clients operate in sectors as diverse as software development, online business and e-commerce, biotechnology and the emerging 'cleantech' sector.
