

Health and aged care

Healthcare and aged care providers face a broad spectrum of unique legal issues that call for specialist expertise and experienced legal advisers. At Cooper Grace Ward, our specialist team provides legal support and assistance to a diverse range of health and aged care sector clients including hospitals, aged care providers, retirement living developers, health insurers and individual medical practitioners such as doctors, nurses and allied health professionals.

Health and aged care is particularly affected by ongoing legislative reform resulting from changing health practices, community expectations and the political landscape. We understand the unique pressures faced by the sector and the need for legal services that are tailored to the sector's commercial and care imperatives.
